The prisoner, at his request, had been allowed soon after the jury left the Courtroom to retire to the little room he has occupied since the trial began as a waiting-room during recess. Before leaving the Court-room he evinced considerable nervousness; but, on getting away to his compartments, his usual composure and assurance soon returned. He sent out for some apples, which he divided with his attendants. meanwhile chatting familiarly and good-naturedly. He was asked what he thought the jury would do? and replied: "I think they will acquit me or disagree! don't you?" Within ten minutes after recess had been taken, the jury called the bailiff in waiting that they were ready with their verdict. They were informed that a recess had been taken, and that Judge Cox had left the Court-room, so they remained in their room until the Court reassembled. The rumor that the jury Building Trade, had agreed quickly spread from one to another, and the excited crowd surged back into the Courtroom and anxiously awaited what all seemed to expect-a verdict of guilty. The musty, antiquated room is devoid of gas, and a score or more candles which had been placed upon the desks of the Judge, the cousel, and the reporters, imparted a weird and funcifully unnatural aspect to the grim old place. The shadows thrown upon the dark background of the walls seemed like flitting spectres to usher in the sombre procession of hose who held in their hands the destiny of this life.
